“ Paul was my best friend for more than 50 years. Paul's parents were my second parents. We took driver's education together when we were 15. We worked together after high school (East Detroit High School) doing roofing and odd construction jobs in and around Detroit. We were given the nickname of The Gold Dust Twins by our co workers. Paul fell off a barn roof while swatting at bees with a hammer. He landed in some bushes and wasn't hurt. We both laughed it off. I loved him like a brother. He was also my best man.
